PREFACE

Several years ago, the pain of being bullied visited our home. When our son, Curtis, was in seventh grade, he was bullied and eventually isolated by several students. My wife and I decided to transfer him to another school system. He found acceptance and a sense of belonging at the new middle school. Then at age fifteen, Curtis was in a car accident that changed his life.

My wife and I had to give the surgeons permission to remove two fingers and one-third of his right hand. He had two other fingers repaired and one rebuilt. When he went back to school, many of his classmates encouraged and supported him. But many were cruel to him. Once again, I asked myself, "How can kids be so cruel?" There was a cry from within me for answers. I wanted to know if I could stop cruelty from developing, and I wanted to stop it after it had already developed.

There was also a cry from within my son, and it was deeper and more intense than mine. The bullying had a tremendous impact on his self-esteem, confidence and emotional health even into his adult years. At the age of twenty-three, he suffered from depression and anxiety. He developed posttraumatic stress from the car wreck and the persistent bullying. He also sought the company of the wrong people. They convinced him to escape his depression, anxiety and emotional pain by taking an illegal drug, METH. He had a heart problem that no one knew about, and the drug killed him.

Now you understand why I am passionate about preventing and stopping bullying and why I am writing this book for you. I understand the pain expressed by children who are bullied and the heartache their parents experience. I want to stop the pain. I also have witnessed the frustration of professionals who seek to prevent and stop bullying. They have a tremendous need for resources designed to help them prevent and stop bullying.

In response to my son's bullying, I wrote my first book, The Bully Free Classroom. I wrote this book because I do not want any student to experience what our son did. I especially do not want them to take the path he took. After his death, my wife, Linda, and I wrote several books and developed numerous other materials and resources (bracelets, brochures, posters and others) that now make up the Bully Free Program. Thousands of schools in the United States and other countries now use our materials and resources. Linda and I work full time helping schools implement the Bully Free Program. We have dedicated the rest of our lives to preventing and stopping bullying. Our efforts have expanded into presenting school assembly programs, presenting to parents, training school personnel and training others who work with young people. Visit our Website www.bullyfree.com for more information.

Bullying can be found in every neighborhood, school system and school. To prevent and reduce it requires a systematic effort in each school. Ideally, there will be a school system wide commitment to preventing and stopping bullying. There must be adult involvement, including parents and others in the community. But this kind of commitment doesn't always exist. I have actually had school superintendents tell me that bullying didn't exist in their school system. Adults denying that bullying exists or ignoring bullying is the worst thing that can happen to children, a school, and a community. When adults harness the energy of school personnel, parents, community representatives and children, bullying can be prevented and stopped, or at least significantly reduced. I often wonder if we can ever eliminate it—considering the nature of human beings. However, I am extremely hopeful. Using this book is the first step toward making that a reality. Please keep in mind that an effective anti-bullying program has several components. No single book or strategy is adequate by itself to prevent and stop bullying.

I hope you find this book informative and helpful.

- Allan L. Beane

DEDICATION

This book is dedicated to our son, Curtis Allan Beane, who was bullied in seventh grade and high school. It is also dedicated to our daughter, Christy Turner; our son-in-law, Mike; and our grandchildren, Emily Grace Turner, Sarah Gail Turner, Jacob Allan Turner and Jimmy Andrew Turner. They have been a light in the darkness caused by Curtis's death. We hope this book, and those who use it, will bring light into the darkness of students who are bullied.

— Allan and Linda Beane

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Grateful thanks are offered to everyone who has helped by providing advice, information and suggestions during the preparation of this book. Special thanks are offered to Ms. Eleanor Mills Spry, Assistant Superintendent of the Murray Independent School System, personnel of the Murray Independent School System and Ms. Teresa Speed, Principal of Murray High School and the Murray High School Faculty. Special thanks are also offered to Ms. Sharon Morgan, professional development coordinator for the Constellation School District, Parma, Ohio and other school personnel of her school district.

INTRODUCTION

Bullying can be found in every school and classroom, preschool through high school. Therefore, to prevent and reduce bullying, a systematic effort must be made in each school and there must also be a school system-wide commitment. Adults denying that bullying exists or ignoring bullying is one of the worst things that can happen to a student and a school. When adults get involved, seek to prevent bullying and consistently respond to it and harness the energy of their students, much of the bullying can be prevented, reduced or stopped. To adequately attack the problem of bullying, schools need to implement numerous school-wide and classroom strategies and a curriculum. This book focuses on the curriculum and classroom strategies.

As a teacher or counselor, you will find this book a powerful instructional anti-bullying resource with an excellent scope and sequence of lesson plans. They purposefully have a heavy focus on anti-bullying content. The lessons were developed by teachers for teachers over a two-year period. They were field-tested in over 20 schools in the United States.

The lesson plans in this book are designed to create a supportive, caring, peaceful and safe classroom and school. They are designed to help you establish a peaceful and caring classroom and school in which students and adults feel psychologically, emotionally and physically safe. They help students who are bullied cope with their feelings and with the bullying, as well as encourage bullies to stop mistreating others. Many of the lessons are designed to empower bystanders and to teach them to play a major role in preventing and stopping bullying. Students can be powerful change agents in their classrooms and their school.

Help create a Bully Free classroom and school today by systematically implementing the lesson plans in this book.

Core and Supplemental Lesson Plans

Since teachers are asked to teach at least one lesson each week, the lesson plans have been divided into two categories: Core Bully Free Lesson Plans and Supplemental Bully Free Lesson Plans. The core plans are considered essential. The supplemental lesson plans can be used if you wish to teach more than one each week or to target specific problem areas. Since the lesson plans are very interactive, during the field testing of the lesson plans it was discovered that the time required to teach the lessons varied from one teacher and class to another. However, you can assume they are 15 to 20 minutes in length.

Description of Lesson Components and Elements

Almost every lesson has three or more of the following components: Learner Outcome(s); Preparation and Materials; Activities; Journaling; and Go Further. These components and elements are described below.

Learner Outcome(s). This component indicates what students will learn and be able to do as a result of the lesson.

Preparation and Materials. For each lesson segment, there is a list of materials and supplies needed to prepare for and implement the lesson plan. In most cases these resources are included with the lesson plan. Included are instructions for preparing each lesson. Sometimes this includes gathering certain materials while other times it may require the teacher to copy and study the handouts and prepare to discuss the items listed.

Activities. This section of the lesson plan includes a variety of activities that are teacher directed as well as student led. Each lesson includes a variety of brief age-appropriate activities based on effective teaching and learning principles.

Journaling. Each student is required to have a journal (3-ring binder with 8 ½" x 11" lined notebook paper). Some of the lessons require students to write in their journals during the lesson and/or to complete writing assignments as follow-up activities. Handouts are often distributed and students are sometimes asked to place these in their journals. Punch three holes in worksheets and handouts for placement in journals of students. Students should bring their journals to each class meeting. When time does not permit writing during class, the journal writing can be considered homework. Occasionally collect the journals to see if students are completing their writing assignments and are placing the handouts and worksheets in their journals. You will also learn a lot about students and their life in school by reading their journals.

Go Further. Some lessons include notes to you. Most of the time this includes additional information and/or resources that support your teaching or to extend learning. Sometimes homework is included.

Importance of Terminology

You will notice an effort in the lesson plans to avoid the terms or labels victim and bully. It is our preference that students not be labeled. When possible, we prefer “students who are bullied” and “students who bully others.” There are a few places in the lesson plans that we use the term victim or victims because we want to emphasize their victimization or abuse by others.

Professional Development and Presentations to Students and Parents

To support your efforts to prevent and stop bullying, you might find it helpful to contact Bully Free Systems, LLC (www.bullyfree.com) who offers presentations to students, parents and school personnel. A variety of three to six hour workshops for school personnel are also available. Contact: Bully Free Systems, LLC, phone: (270) 227-0431 or email abeane@bullyfree.com.

Lesson Plan Record Chart

To assist you in keeping track of and reporting the lessons you have taught, the following “Lesson Plan Record Chart” is provided. Space is provided for notes regarding changes you wish to make the next time you teach the lesson. This chart also serves as an accountability tool or report form. A copy of it should be given to your principal on a regular/systematic basis to report the lessons you have taught. Ask your principal to specify the desired frequency of such reporting.

LESSON C7

What is Cyber Bullying?

Learner Outcome:

By the end of this lesson students will be able to define cyber bullying.

Preparation and Materials:

- Prior to class write on the board, chart paper or electronic whiteboard: “What is Cyber Bullying?”
- Copy the worksheet “Definition and Impact of Cyber Bullying” for each student.

Activities:

1. Review the previous lesson.
2. Tell students they need to know how to handle a new form of bullying called cyber bullying.
3. Point to the question: “What is cyber bullying?”
4. Ask students to help you write a definition of cyber bullying. Write their comments on the board, chart paper or electronic whiteboard.
5. Distribute the worksheet “Definition and Impact of Cyber Bullying” and read aloud the definition.
6. Examine and discuss this definition in light of the earlier comments of students regarding the definition of cyber bullying.
7. Say: “Cyber bullying is becoming more and more prevalent and many states are passing laws that should stop many people from engaging in this damaging and often unlawful behavior. These behaviors include awful text messages that are sometimes threatening and videos and pictures that are embarrassing and humiliating.”
8. Say: “If someone has already been bullied and then cyber bullying starts, it intensifies the hurtful feelings. With just a few strokes on the computer keyboard, hurtful and destructive information can be anonymously sent to or posted for viewing by thousands of people. The bullied student feels like people around the world are involved and there is no escape. Therefore, it can be more destructive and hurtful than other forms of bullying.”
9. Say: “When cyber bullying caps off years of bullying, some students become depressed and suicidal. Some students have committed suicide after being cyber bullied. Some decide to shoot individuals in their school.”
10. Ask: “Do any of you know someone who has been cyber bullied? If so, how did that impact them?”

11. Ask students to write on the worksheet “Definition and Impact of Cyber Bullying” the thoughts and feelings created by cyber bullying. Randomly select students to share what they have written.
12. Say: “Cyber bullying must stop. So, I challenge and dare you to help us stop it. I challenge you and dare you to report all cyber bullying.”
13. Review the major points of the lesson.

Journaling:

Ask students to write a paragraph about how it would feel to be cyber bullied. If they wish, they can write about a personal experience with cyber bullying or about the experience of a friend who has been cyber bullied.

Instructions: In the box below, list the impact (thoughts and feelings) someone might have who is cyber bullied.

Definition and Impact of Cyber Bullying

Definition:

Cyber bullying involves the use of information and communication technologies such as, email, cell phone and text messages, instant messages, defamatory personal web sites and defamatory online personal polling web sites to support deliberate, repeated and hostile behavior by an individual or group that is intended to harm others.

Impact of Cyber Bullying:

LESSON C8

What Does Cyber Bullying Look Like?

Learner Outcome:

By the end of this lesson students will be able to list examples of cyber bullying.

Preparation and Materials:

Copy the worksheet “What Does Cyber Bullying Look Like?” for each student.

Activities:

1. Review the previous lesson.
2. Say: “Today, I want to continue our discussion of cyber bullying. Cyber bullying comes in a variety of forms. Students are discovering more and more creative ways to use technology to hurt, threaten, embarrass and humiliate people. “
3. Say: “The attacks can be direct or by proxy. Cyber bullying by proxy occurs when a cyber bully gets someone else to do the bullying.”
4. Say: “Most of the time the proxy does not know that he is being used by the cyber bully.”
5. Say: “This is the most dangerous form of cyber bullying because it can get adults involved in the bullying who are unaware they are dealing with a student. Sometimes cyber bullies attack by posing as the victim to create problems for the true victim. For example, the student who bullies may make it look as though the victim is doing something wrong; the parents are then notified and the parents punish the victim.”
6. Ask: “Can you think of other ways people are cyber bullied?”
7. Distribute and discuss the worksheet “What Does Cyber Bullying Look Like?” Ask students to fill in the blank lines on the worksheet with additional examples of cyber bullying. Ask students to share the examples they have written.
8. Review the major points of the lesson.

Go Further:

Students who cyber bully often use one or more of the following online forums.

- Blogs (web logs). Blogs provide users with the tools to publish personal content online about a range of topics, such as hobbies, travel or work projects. People then connect their blogs with those of other people with similar interests.

- Chat rooms. These are virtual meeting places. Most chat rooms can accommodate more than one hundred users simultaneously.
- Discussion groups (newsgroups). Discussion groups are accessible via the Internet. Each group (forum) is categorized and devoted to a single topic. Messages are posted in bulletin form and remain on a server, rather than being e-mailed.
- E-mail (electronic mail). E-mail is a service that allows subscribers to pass messages from one person to the other through an Internet service provider (ISP).
- Instant messaging (IM). This is an online activity that allows two or more people to converse online. Subscribers can create a contact list of those with whom they want to communicate.
- Message boards. These are online places where people with common interests go to talk about those interests, such as sports teams, TV shows and online games.
- Short message service (SMS). This is a service that allows text messages to be sent and received via cell phones.

Journaling:

Ask students to examine the examples of cyber bullying on the handout and select the one that would be most hurtful or disturbing. Ask them to explain their selection.

Name: _____ Date: _____

Instructions: After your teacher discusses the following examples of cyber bullying, add additional examples of cyber bullying on the blank lines.

What Does Cyber Bullying Look Like?

Some examples of cyber bullying include using technology to:

- spread malicious gossip, rumors and lies
- post defamatory photographs and video recordings on the web
- send mean and ugly e-mails
- send malicious code
- send junk e-mails and instant messages (IMs)
- impersonate the victim
- send cruel jokes
- send or post embarrassing and humiliating information or photographs

LESSON C12

Why Bullying Must Stop

Learner Outcome:

By the end of this lesson students will be able to discuss reasons bullying must stop.

Preparation and Materials:

Copy the handout “Why Bullying Must Stop” for each student.

Activities:

1. Review the previous lesson.
2. Distribute the handout “Why Bullying Must Stop.” Randomly select students to each read two or three of the bulleted facts appearing on the handout. Discuss each item.
3. After all the facts have been read, ask “Which of the facts on the handout surprise or concern you the most?” Discuss why the items surprised or concerned them.
4. Review the major points of the lesson.

Journaling:

Ask students to explain how bullying could cause post traumatic stress.

Why Bullying Must Stop

- Bullying occurs in every school (20% or more are bullied).
- 160,000 students per day stay home from school because of bullying.
- Bullying creates a fearful environment that hinders learning.
- It is a common theme in the school shootings.
 - Over 90% of school shootings involved young males who were relentlessly tormented and bullied because they were considered unmanly or not aggressive enough.
 - A study by the National Threat Assessment Center found that in more than two thirds (2/3) of the 37 school shootings since 1974 the attackers felt “persecuted, bullied or threatened.” In over half, revenge was the motivation.
- Bullied students seek acceptance and a sense of belonging by joining and/or forming gangs, cults, hate groups and drug groups.
- Bullying causes post traumatic stress in some victims (Kinchin, 2001).
- Bullying causes “toxic shame” that creates lack of trust and hopelessness.
 - Some victims don’t trust themselves to deal with bullying.
 - They may stop trusting others to help them.
 - Some feel that life will not be good to them anymore.
- 30% of youth suicides are because of bullying.
- Bullied students often engage in self-mutilation (i.e., cutting themselves) “to release the pain of being bullied.”
- 10% of dropouts do so because of bullying.
- Bullying causes eating disorders.
- Bullying causes low self-esteem.
- Bullying may cause withdrawal, depression, anxiety disorders, school phobia and post traumatic stress.

LESSON C13

Bullying Impacts Physical and Mental Health

Learner Outcome:

By the end of this lesson students will be able to discuss the impact bullying has on a victim's physical and emotional health.

Preparation and Materials:

- Read and be prepared to discuss the handout "Bullying Impacts Physical and Mental Health."
- Copy the handout "Bullying Impacts Physical and Mental Health" for each student.
- Copy the "Worksheet: Bullying Impacts Physical and Mental Health" for each student.

Activities:

1. Review the previous lesson.
2. Distribute and discuss the handout "Bullying Impacts Physical and Mental Health" to each student.
3. Distribute "Worksheet: Bullying Impacts Physical and Mental Health" and ask students to read and follow the instructions.
4. Randomly select students to share the information they wrote on the worksheet.
5. Review the major points of the lesson.

Journaling:

Ask students to reflect on the lesson and to write a paragraph summarizing their thoughts and feelings.

Bullying Impacts Physical and Mental Health

- Students who are bullied often experience stress related physical illnesses, depression, anxiety, fear, anger, insomnia, irritability and a variety of other problems.
- Bullying can make a person feel that their life is out of control.
- Students who are bullied may develop eating disorders.
- Students who bully sometimes cut themselves or harm themselves other ways.
- Students who are bullied are more likely to be more anxious, sad, depressed, have low self-esteem and low energy.
- Students who are bullied sometimes commit suicide.
- Students who bully others may also experience health problems because of their anger.

Bullying Causes Depression and Suicide

Learner Outcome:

By the end of this lesson students will be able to discuss why some students who are bullied get depressed and commit suicide.

Preparation and Materials:

- Read and be prepared to discuss the handout “Bullying Causes Depression and Suicide.”
- Copy the handout “Bullying Causes Depression and Suicide” for each student.
- Copy the “Worksheet: Bullying Causes Depression and Suicide” for each student.

Activities:

1. Review the previous lesson.
2. Distribute the handout “Bullying Causes Depression and Suicide” and the worksheet to each student.

Bullying Causes Depression and Suicide

Depression

- Students who are bullied may be at risk of suffering depression, even several years after the bullying.
- Students who are bullied often feel they are surrounded by adults who are not sure how to help them or who may not even be supportive. Therefore, students who are bullied not only feel helpless they often develop a sense of hopelessness and become depressed.
- Bullying not only causes depression in the childhood years; persistently bullied students are also more likely to become depressed adults (Byrne, 1994, p. 2).

Suicide

- Approximately 30% of all child suicides can be directly related to bullying (Hawker and Boulton, 2000).
- Students who are bullied often feel hopeless, which may cause depression. Untreated depression is the number one cause for suicide.
- Bullying hurts students emotionally which creates a chemical imbalance in the brain, causing them to be depressed. And when that happens, they are at risk of suicide.

LESSON C19

Factors Influencing My Reporting the Bullying of Others

Learner Outcome:

By the end of this lesson students will be able to discuss the reasons they do not report bullying to adults.

Preparation and Materials:

Copy the worksheet “Factors Influencing My Reporting the Bullying of Others” for each student.

Activities:

1. Review the following reasons students who see bullying do not report it:
 - “They have seen adults in their school told and nothing was done.”
 - “They are afraid the adults will make it worse for them.”
 - “They are afraid the student who bullies will find out and make them a target.”
 - “They don’t think it is a big deal. Bullying is just something that happens in school.”
2. Say: “Today I want us to examine the factors that might influence our willingness to report bullying when we see or hear it.”
3. Distribute the worksheet “Factors Influencing My Reporting the Bullying of Others.”
 - Ask students to read the instructions and complete the worksheet.
 - Tell them not to write their name on the worksheet.
 - Tell them you will collect the worksheets, tally the results and discuss it with them.
4. Collect the worksheets and tally the results.
5. If time permits, discuss the results. If not, discuss the results during the next lesson.

Journaling:

Ask students to reflect on the lesson and to write a paragraph summarizing their thoughts and feelings.

Instructions: Do not write your name on this worksheet. Indicate which of the following would be an influencing factor in your decision to report that someone is being bullied by circling “Not a Factor” or “A Factor.” Then answer the question “Would you still report?” by circling “Yes” or “No.”

Allan L. Beane, Ph.D. and Linda Beane

Allan L. Beane, Ph.D., is an internationally recognized author, speaker and expert on bullying. He has over 36 years experience in education, which includes teaching special education, teaching regular education, serving as Director of a School Safety Center and serving as vice president of a university. He has served as an expert in criminal cases and as a consultant in lawsuits involving bullying. He has also made numerous television appearances.

Dr. Beane's son was bullied in seventh grade and high school. Bullying contributed to his son's untimely death at the age of 23. His son's life inspired him to write his first book, The Bully Free Classroom, and other books about bullying. His first book is in several languages. Schools and districts all over the United States have adopted his Bully Free Program.

As a dynamic and highly sought-after speaker in the United States and other countries, Dr. Beane presents keynote addresses, presentations and workshops for school districts, organizations, colleges, students and parents. His down-to-earth speaking style, inspirational stories and practical strategies appeal to audiences everywhere.

Linda Beane has over 20 years of experience in educational settings. She is the co-author of several anti-bullying books included in the Bully Free Program. Also a mother and grandmother, Linda has been widely recognized for her support of children and her responsiveness to their needs.

Allan and Linda operate Bully Free Systems, a company dedicated to preventing and stopping bullying. Since the death of their son Curtis, in whose death bullying played a part, they have devoted their lives to creating safe and supportive learning environments where all students can have a sense of belonging and acceptance.
